I have been a clinical supervisor and clinical consultant for over 20 years in the area of child, family and adult therapy. I have supervised in government, non-profit and private practice and enjoy the experience of getting to appreciate the therapist as a person first, then the therapist, and letting the needs of the person direct the flow of the supervision. I strongly believe in experiential learning as therapists and encourage supervisees to open up to the process of self-reflection and personal journeying as the path to their learning. Therefore, my supervision style is personal and asks for vulnerability in the bubble of safety that this sacred relationship can offer.
