Since 2014 I have been working with students in their supervision year across all the major university counselling programs in the Lower Mainland, and some beyond. I additionally supervise RCCs in all stages of their career. My areas of expertise include somatic relational approaches to the treatment of trauma, AEDP, group counselling and group practice ownership. Currently, the practice I own and direct has 20+ independent contractors, 4 interns and 4 post-graduate fellows. For many years I ran 10 day residential treatment programs for female veterans and went on to train other therapists across Canada in this model. This in addition to running dozens of therapy groups for laypeople has left me with a particular passion and skillset around merging two of my greatest passions: group work and supervision. I regularly offer opportunities for group supervision for clinicians interested in the dynamic opportunity for growth, connection and transformation that this offers.
