Hello! My name is Liana (pronouns she/her/hers). I hold a master's degree in counselling psychology from Adler University. My love of learning has led me to obtain a second master's degree from North America's foremost institute for the study of depth psychology, Pacifica Graduate Institute, where I specialized in Jungian and archetypal studies.

I have been immersed in the study and practice of psychology for the past twenty years. While western models of psychology interest me, somatic and creative practices such as yoga and dance have been vital on my own journey.

I work from a person centred, depth oriented, relational, trauma informed foundation. My main clinical supervision areas include working through transference and countertransference in the consulting room, navigating imposter syndrome for new clinicians, support with how to include the unconscious in your sessions ex. dream work, active imagination, and somatic awareness.
