I work with front-line workers (counsellors, outreach support workers, community teams, society and association managers, clergy, and more) who are assisting marginalized people.

Clients value my personalized but structured approach.

They know that I bring heart and experience to consultation and supervision sessions.

My goal with clients is to support, preserve, nurture and sustain the passion they and their teams have while working towards lasting changes with their clients and the communities they support. I make space to undo the aloneness clients might feel, and help unpack fears, perceived inadequacies, ethical dilemmas, and 'stuckness' in their work. Together we build awareness of where and how to access their clients' strength and resilience. We find new places to grow, learn, and maintain inspiration.

For more information or to get a better sense of fit and connection, please email me so that we can schedule a phone call to explore this further.
