In my clinical supervision areas, I prioritize working with immigrants and refugees of all ages and genders, employing a holistic family system approach. Central to my practice is a client-centered philosophy, where individuals and families are empowered to take an active honour in their therapeutic journey. By valuing cultural sensitivity and understanding, I create a safe space for clients to explore their unique experiences and challenges. Within this framework, trauma processing is a key focus, recognizing the profound impact of past experiences on current well-being. Through a collaborative and compassionate approach, I guide clients in navigating and healing from trauma, fostering resilience and growth. With a deep commitment to fostering cultural competence and inclusivity, I aim to facilitate transformative change that honors the dignity and diversity of each individual and family I have the privilege to work with.
