Susie Lang-Gould is the Director of the Peace Portal Counselling Centre. She is a Registered Clinical Counsellor and a registered member in good standing with BCACC and BCTF. Susie has over 30 years of experience as a Coach, Teacher, and Clinical Counsellor working in both private and public school settings, Family Services of Greater Vancouver, Private Practice and PPCC. Additionally, she is a seasoned Elementary and High School Counsellor and Adjunct Professor at Trinity Western University.

Presently Susie is the Director of Peace Portal Counselling Centre working with fifteen RCC/RSWs and five staff administrators.

Under her leadership, PPCC has become a training site for students in the Masters of Arts Counselling Psychology program. Once a year she teaches four practicum students and throughout the year there are four interns working with experienced counsellors at the centre. She continues to counsel clients as well as supervise students, interns and RCCs.

Throughout her career, she has been trained in many various theoretical models. At the beginning of her career while working with children, adolescents and families she completed Gordon Neufeld's Advanced Studies, certifications in Dan Seigel's neuropsychology, CBT and EFT. With a foundation in attachment, development and neuroscience, she has been studying IFS. As a supervisor, Susie meets people where they are at and is open to various theoretical models. Within her supervision, she includes Person of the Therapist, exploring our personal life with the belief is we can only take our clients as far as we have gone ourselves.

She creates a safe environment for counsellors/students/interns to share vulnerable cases, take risks and celebrate magical moments and thrives on learning and growing together.

Susie creates a meaningful connection and enables you to be seen and heard. She believes it is through meaningful connections that people are able to be the change they wish to see in themselves.
